Two die in plane crash

PLAINFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The failure of a twin-seat experimental airplane to clear a line of trees along a soybean field in northeastern Illinois was the apparent cause of a crash which killed two Illinois men, witnesses said.

Victims in the Saturday crash were identified as Charles H. Smith, 44, of Bolingbrook, the owner and pilot of the plane, and his companion, Walter G. Rott, 28, of Lisle.

Three witnesses on the ground said the plane was flying at a very low altitude and apparently failed to clear the trees when it plunged to earth in the field and landed on its back.

Authorities said the plane had taken off earlier Saturday from Clow Airport near Bolingbrook and had landed a short time later at the Joliet Park District Airport. The crash occurred shortly after its takeoff from the Joliet airstrip.
