Thompson seeks post

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican Gov. James Thompson of Illinois has enough support from his fellow GOP governors to be elected chairman of the National Governors Association, Thompson's news secretary says.

Thompson and Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond are vigorously campaigning among their colleagues at the GOP Governors Conference for the influential post.

Both men want the job because over the past few years the NGA, with a staff of over 70 people, has become an influential lobby in Washington. Chairmanship of the organization alternates yearly between Democrats and Republicans. Whomever the Republicans choose in an election expected to take place today, he will take over the NGA in August.

Thompson's news secretary, Dave Gilbert, said Sunday that over the past few days Thompson aides have contacted other Republican governors, seeking their support. "We want to keep this a gentleman's election," Gilbert said. "But, of course, we'd like to win. And we think the governor has an adequate number of votes to win."

Gilbert said that because Thompson is chairman of the Republican Governors Association, protocol dictated he be selected to head the National Governors Association. "It's a long-standing tradition that the chairman of the RGA moves on to be chairman of the NGA," Gilbert said.

West Lincoln fourth graders Jimmy Voyles and Jean Pyun are shown stirring a pot of chili in anticipation of the annual West Lincoln School chili supper. The supper will be Friday from 5 to 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Ticket price is $1.75 and includes the choice of chili or hot dog, dessert and beverage. Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance from any West Lincoln student. There will also be a turkey and cartful of groceries awarded.

The Community Club sponsors the event and uses the proceeds from the supper to purchase materials and equipment for the teachers and children of West Lincoln School.

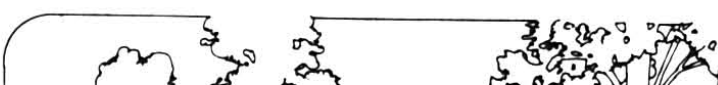

'Transfer' scheduled

PEORIA — Tickets are now on sale for "An Evening with The Manhattan Transfer," appearing in the Peoria Civic Center theatre, Sunday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m.

The "Manhattan Transfer" is, perhaps, the most unique and skillful vocal group in the world today. The four voices of Tim Hauser, Janis Siegel, Alan Paul and Cheryl Bentley blend into an elegant whole — a perfect, four-part flow. Their unique style is an alliance of comedy and novelty values with serious music explorations.

Meet Tuesday

MASON CITY — The Mason City Literature Club will meet at the home of Rosie Nelson Nov. 16 at 9:30 a.m.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, who earlier this month suggested the need for dramatic policy changes to cope with U.S. farm problems, says the administration will put a program together in the next month.

That program, Block says, could include giving farmers who agree to curb production some of the federal surplus grain to sell for their own profit. In theory, it would reduce surpluses while putting cash in the pockets of struggling farmers.

"We're looking at it," Block said Tuesday after a two-day meeting with farm leaders and economists to discuss solutions to overproduction and record grain stockpiles that have forced market prices to near-depression levels.

Block declined to endorse the commodity proposal formally, saying he wanted to review it and other alternatives before announcing any program for the future. But he said the farm leaders at the meeting were intrigued by the idea and generally supportive.

"We're not at a point now to say, 'Yes, it's a great thing,'" said Robert Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest agricultural organization. "But we're willing to look at it to see if it's worth developing."

The plan would mean farmers cutting back production would be compensated by getting some portion of government grain to sell on the open market. The amount, according to Block aide John Ochs, would probably be a percentage of the crop farmers would have harvested from their idled acres.

The government currently owns about 268 million bushels of corn and 180 million bushels of wheat.

Block said the group also discussed expanding government-backed export credit, changing the long-standing farm price support program to insure there are no incentives for overproduction, restricting the amount of grain placed in the long-term reserve and ways of ending subsidized export sales by America's foreign competitors.

Discarded and labeled dead were any "mandatory control programs" that would require farmers to cutback production.

"It's just our opinion that we shouldn't sit back and just wring our hands," he said, adding that decisions on the overall program will be made in the next three to four weeks.

"If we're going to do something about the 1983 crop, we have to decide what we're going to do and do it," Block said.
