Pennsylvania Cat workers hold rally

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

YORK, Pa. — United Auto Workers leaders and rank-and-file members emerged from a weekend rally pledging to stick together in their battle against Caterpillar Inc., the world's largest maker of earth-moving equipment.

The union said it won't agree to a new contract with Caterpillar unless the company's York County plant is part of it, the union's No. 2 leader said Sunday.

"And, obviously, our intention is to keep York in operation for the life of the new agreement," said Bill Cass-tevens, the union's secretary-treasurer and head of its Caterpillar department.
