Prosecutors reveal their evidence in Brach case

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO - An unidentified witness says Richard Bailey offered him $5,000 to kill candy heiress Helen Vorhees Brach but he turned down the offer, federal prosecutors have disclosed.

Days later, though, Bailey and an unidentified co-conspirator were told the "Candy Lady was now dead and would not be bothering them," the government said in citing evidence that led to its charges against Bailey,

Those disclosures were included in a 95-page document prosecutors released Tuesday showcasing much of their evidence against Bailey.

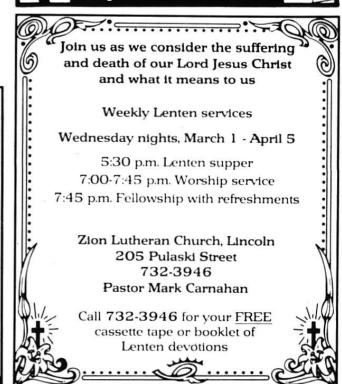

The documents also reveal that another witness has told authorities that shortly before Mrs. Brach's disappearance in 1977, she furiously announced that she had been swindled in a horse deal and was going to the district attorney.

Judge zaps probation, sends man to prison

BY NATALIE BOEHME THE COURIER

Aaron L. Poe, 21, of 436 Eighth St. was sentenced in Logan county Circuit Court Thursday to a maximum three years in state prison for violating his probation conditions.

Poe, who testified he was an alcoholic, was on probation after pleading guilty in April 1993 to unlawful restraint, a class 4 felony. The state's attorney's office filed a petition to revoke probation after Poe was arrested May 22 for illegal consumption and for failure to pay his probation fees.

Defense attorney Tom Funk argued that Poe was intoxicated during all his brushes with the law, indicating he needed treatment for his addiction rather than prison time.

But State's Attorney Tim Huyett said this was the second time a petition to revoke probation had been filed against Poe since his 1993 conviction and leniency no longer served

Logan County Circuit Court Judge Gerald Dehner agreed that Poe's noncompliance with the court's sentences in the past -

which also included treatment for his addiction - made him ineligible for an extended pro-

In addition to the prison term, the court recommended Poe received alcohol treatment while incarcerated. Poe was credited for 129 days credit for time already served.

Poe's sentencing hearing began Wednesday, but the sentence was delayed a day when Poe's father had a seizure after testifying as a character witness for his son Toward Education) of Illinois, which represents 11,000 motorcyclists statewide.

Jerry Conaway of Lincoln, president of the 200-member, ogan County-based Salt Creek ABATE, said, "I'm definitely against it. It's a freedom of choice, whether a rider wants to wear a helmet or not. That stuff they're laying about safety is a bunch of bull. It's freedom of choice, just like a woman and her own body.

The bill was available to a Senate Transportation Committee meeting Thursday but not called. Senate staffer Ed Orlet said, however, "It will be acted on, I guarantee you that. It's just a matter of when. It's one of the more attention-getting bills in the transportation committee."

Tammi Pratt of Lincoln, a member of the Illinois River ABATE and the McHenry County Independent Riders Harley Owners Group, said of the legislation, "I feel like anybody else from ABATE - if you want to wear a helmet, that's up to the individual. Our logos say, 'Let those who ride decide.

Pratt said there are no guarantees helmets would be safer for motorcycle riders.

"There have been several times I've heard or in accidents I've read about, the brain of the accident victim had swelled. To get the helmet off did more damage than the accident it-self," Pratt said. "Plus, face guards have cracked in accidents and some pieces have become lodged in the throats of the accident victims.

Conaway conceded helmets might enhance riders' safety in town, but wouldn't help on cross country rides.

"Freedom will survive in said Todd Vandermyde, ABATE's legislative coordina-

The group sponsors free rider education courses for licensed drivers and graduates nearly 7,000 students a year, he said.

"You stop injuries by stopping accidents, helmets treat the symptom but not the cause, Vandermyde said.

Vandermyde showed that between 1985 and 1990, Illinois experienced a 46 percent decrease in motorcycle accidents and a 47 percent decrease in injuries to motorcyclists.

Vandermyde, like Pratt, said helmets can do more harm than

Riders can break their collarbone if, when thrown from a bike, their head bounces back and forth, exceeding the normal range of motion for the head and neck, he said.

Cullerton contends there are several costs borne by the state because no helmet law exists.

"About two-thirds of those who are severely injured as a result of motorcycle crashes end up on Public Aid" because they are disabled, he said

George Ryan rules out bid for Senate

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Secretary of State George Ryan today ruled himself out of next year's race for the U.S. Senate, saying his real interest is state government and that is where he will remain.

"It's not an easy decision for me to reach," Ryan said in a statement. "I have received a number of calls from friends and number of calls from friends and supporters around Illinois, en-couraging me to run. Frankly, their inspiration prompted me to give the Senate race a serious look."

Ryan said that while getting into the scramble for the Repub-lican nomination was "tempt-ing," his chief interest remains within the state.

"I believe that is where my experience and ability can be most effective," Ryan said. "For the next four years, I will concentrate on serving the people of Illinois as their secretary of state."

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon's decision to retire next year creates an open seat and most likely will mean Senate primary races a number of Republicans be-lieved to be looking at the race, although James Desnick, an eyecare entrepreneur with a heavy of legal problems, is the announced contender thus only far.

"One of the positions we're discussing is, if there are block grants, there has to be sufficient flexibility in them to make sure rural businesses other than agrirural businesses other than agri-culture have access to re-sources." DiFonso said. "There's some pressure, specifi-cally within the National As-sociation of State Agriculture Directors, as one might guess, to keep the block grant language a little more limited to agriculture production agriculture and

Joseph "Jay" Kayne, director of Economic Development and Commerce Policy Studies with the National Governor's Association, said block grants will almost certainly mean less money overall than current programs, but also a chance to seek some different solutions.

As an example, Kayne said, a community might want to ap-

"The kind of thing I don't think will be effective is the folks who've been the traditional deliverers, the traditional advideliverers, the traditional advisory panels (saying), 'This is our chance, we've been doing this for 40 years,''' Kayne said. ''I think you'll find people will look at you and say, if you've been doing it for 40 years, why is there still a problem?''

The rural councils that are becoming ineffective, he said, are seeking more money for current programs. By contrast, "the councils that have been successful have been the ones that have gone to the governors and Con-gress and said, 'We hear what you're saying (about budget pressures), let us help you find the solution to that.'''

In Illinois, DiFonso said, groups like Rural Partners probwon't be advocating the status quo, or acting as a traditional interest group

Burglars kill rookie cop, wound another

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO - Burglary suspects opened fire on the rookie police officers who surprised them, killing one and wounding another, police said.

Officer Daniel Doffyn, 40, was shot in the head and shoulder Wednesday; he died about five hours later during surgery. Officer Milan Bubalo, 30, suffered a broken hip when he as shot in the thigh and was in fair condition at Cook County Hos-

Doffyn had been a police officer for eight months. Bubalo

The officers had just finished their shifts when they heard a radio report of a burglary at a West Side apartment complex across the street from the police station, said Police Supt. Matt Rodriguez.

They and two other officers ran across the street and heard glass breaking inside an apartment, Rodriguez said. Doffyn, followed by Bubalo, ran around the building and Doffyn saw one suspect coming out of an apartment window, Rodriguez said.

Doffyn grabbed the 16-yearold boy, but another suspect emerged with an automatic weapon and opened fire, Rodriguez said. His shots injured the first suspect, killed Doffyn and injured Bubalo, and Bubalo then shot and injured the second suspect, Rodriguez said.

The suspects were in critical condition today at Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center, said administrative supervisor Bernadette Pollard.

The third suspect, who was not hurt, was arrested inside the apartment by other officers.

No charges had been filed by late Wednesday against any of the suspects.

Study: Medicaid reform probably won't be much of a money-saver

CHICAGO - A program to reform the state's Medicaid system probably won't result in substantial savings, according to a new study

The state wants to institute a managed-care system, similar to a health maintenance organization, in hopes of driving down spiraling Medicaid costs, which are budgeted at $5.7 billion this fiscal year.

"Our view is that while a carefully planned and a carefully implemented managed care plan for Medicare is a good idea, the state should not expect significant cost savings," said Law-rence B. Joseph, with the Center for Urban Research and Policy Studies at the University of Chicago. He coauthored the study released Wednesday

Joseph said the primary target of managed care is welfare families, who represent about 70 percent of Medicaid enrollment but only 30 percent of expenditures.

"It's hugely unlikely you're going to save hundreds of millions of dollars with a Medicaid plan that focuses on the managed care population," he said.

Medicaid costs for welfare families for fiscal 1993 were $1,300 per person, compared with $7,900 for each elderly person and $9,000 for each disabled

"The disabled have been, over time, a growing proportion of both enrollment and spending. So in 1983, they were 10 percent of enrollment; in 1994, they were 18 percent," he said.

The study examined Medicaid spending from 1983 to 1994.

2 41 V4 UD V4

CHICAGO (AP) - Wheat futures prices named in heavy trading today on the Chicago Board of Trade amid reports of numerous overseas sales Soybeans futures also gained, while corn futures were lower

The Agriculture Department announced this morning that China, Egypt and Bangladesh had bought a total 545,000 tons of wheat under the government's subsidy program

Prices also gained as the U.S. dollar turnbled this morning against major foreign currencies. The weaker dollar could bring buyers into the market since they would get more product for their money

Soybeans futures prices gained in line with soybean oil prices, which zoomed higher after competitor Malaysian palm oil futures prices closed limit-up overnight

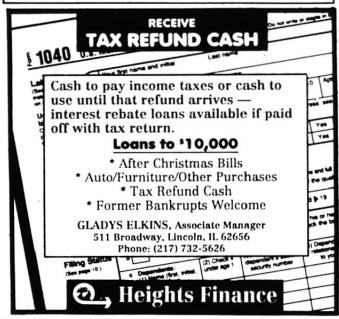

Com futures showed continued weakness on fears of renewed farmer selling.

Wheat for March delivery rose 31/2 cents to $3.50 a bushel, March corn fell 1/4 cent to $2 4014 a bushel. March oats rose 114 cents to $1.26 a bushel, March soybeans rose 11/2 cents to $5.70 a bushel.

Livestock futures were mostly lower on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, while pork bellies futures prices were higher

April live cattle rose 10 cent to 71.30 a pound. March feeder cattle fell 22 cent to 69.35 cents a polund; April live hogs fell .15 cent to 41 22 cents a pound, March pork bellies rose 03 cent to 47 40 cents a pound.

ON THE RECORD

Police beat

Steven R. Benedict, 23, of 1550 Fourth St. was arrested on charges that he allegedly abducted a toddler March 13 from a residence in the 300 block of South LaDue Street, according to a sheriff's department report.

Benedict was arrested at the Logan County Courthouse at 2.50 p.m. Monday on a Logan County warrant.

He is charged with two counts of child abduction and one count of unlawful restraint, all class 4 felonies, and one count of battery and criminal trespass to a residence, both class A misdemeanors

Assistant state's attorney Kirk Schoenbein said Benedict allegedly entered the residence looking for the child's mother. When he could not locate the woman, he grabbed the little girl and took her outside to his truck. Schoenbein said.

Benedict never left the scene, however, because the mother came out and retrieved the child, he said

Benedict's bond was set at $30,000 because at the time of the alleged offense he was already on bond for two separate incidences of criminal trespass to a residence, both misdemeanor charges.

He had yet to post bond this morning

Academic coach caught cheating resigns from his teaching job

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO - The former coach of the Steinmetz High School academic decathlon team has resigned from his teaching post after admitting he cheated in last year's event.

But Chicago Board of Education officials said at a news conference Wednesday that they have uncovered no evidence that English teacher Jerry Plecki or students from the school cheated at this year's decathlon.

Steinmetz won the state championship March 11 by racking up the nation's highest score but was stripped of the title last week when the team refused to take two "validation" tests.

The Illinois Academic Decathlon Association said the team's scores had "statistical variances beyond normal parameters.'

Earlier this week, Steinmetz Principal Constantine Kiamos said Plecki admitted slipping his students some answers during a regional decathlon competition in 1994. But Plecki and the current team members insist they did not cheat this year.

Superintendent Argie Johnson had said Monday that she would try to fire Plecki from his $40,000-a-year job. Plecki, 43, had taught at Steinmetz since September 1991.

The Board of Education's investigation included interviews with each team member and a review of their study materials, said board attorney Mike Hernandez. The board has sent the materials to the decathlon association for comparison with the actual test, said another board attorney, Jerry Marconi.

"(When I was) a state's attorney, I dealt with a lot of liars." Marconi said. "I interviewed nine or 10 kids (on the team) separately, and I never got a hint that any of them was ly-

From where I sit, it appears they studied hard and got good results. If they cheated, they didn't know about it."

Sheriffs sponsor abuse institute

Free tuition to the Illinois Teenage Institute on Substance Abuse is being offered to the first 80 high schoolers in the state who apply for the 5-day session.

The institute is open to any high school freshman, sophomore or junior with passing grades. Participating students must be willing to serve as youth leaders and prevention resources at their schools.

Because the institute is a prevention program, rather than aimed at treatment, the sessions are not open to teens with emotional problems or drug or alcohol addictions.

The Illinois Sheriffs' Association is the principal sponsor for the annual institute. The $2.30 scholarships, which includes tuition to the session, lodging, a T-shirt, photo, workshop materials, recreation and meals, will be given to the first 80 teems who ambly teens who apply

Three separate institute sessions will be held at Illinois Wesles an University in Bloomington during the weeks of July 9-13; July 16-20, and July 23-27. Transportation to Bloomington is not included in the scholarship

Any student interested in attending can contact Logan County

Sheriff Bob Patterson at 732-2156 for an application form.
