Dead girl's parents appear on CNN

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOULDER, Colo. — The parents of a 6-year-old beauty pageant winner found strangled in her home say they don't believe the killer was a family member or friend.

"Our family is a loving family, a gentle family," John B. Ramsey, JonBenet's father, told CNN on Wednesday.

Ramsey and his wife, Patricia, were interviewed by the network in Atlanta, where they buried their daughter Tuesday. The family used to live there.

"We are a Christian, God-fearing family. We love our children. We would do anything for our children," Mrs. Ramsey said.

The body of JonBenet, last year's Little Miss Colorado, was discovered the day after Christmas in the family's upscale home in Boulder, about eight hours after she was reported kidnapped.

Authorities have refused to discuss the case. While a police spokeswoman said earlier this week that no suspects have been identified, she said the public is in no danger from the girl's killer.

But Mrs. Ramsey warned her neighbors to be careful.

"There is a killer on the loose," she told CNN. "There's someone out there ... I don't know who it is. I don't know if it's a he or a she. But if I were a resident of Boulder, I would tell my friends to keep your babies close to you."

Five detectives from Boulder were sent to Atlanta on Wednesday, Boulder spokeswoman Leslie Aaholm confirmed today.

She had no information on what they planned to do in Atlanta. Atlanta police said they met the group at the airport as a courtesy.

Ramsey, a president of a computer company, said he raised the $118,000 ransom a kidnapping note demanded on just an hour's notice.

Ramsey said the three-page kidnapping note, found on some little-used back stairs in their expensive Boulder home, said they would get a telephone call with further instructions, but no one called.

Later, he said, "one of the detectives asked me and one of my friends who was there to go through every inch of the house and see if there was anything that was unusual or out of place."

Board of Trade

CHICAGO (AP) — Overnight rains in dry regions of southern Brazil sent soybean futures prices into a decline today on the Chicago Board of Trade. Traders said it remains to be seen if enough rain materializes to bring some meaningful relief to the dry conditions.

Cold weather forecasts for this weekend in the Plains produced a reluctance to sell wheat futures, which opened a little higher.

In early dealings, wheat for delivery in March was 3 cents higher at $3.95 1/2 a bushel; March corn was 1/4 cent lower at $2.58 a bushel; March oats were 3/4 cent higher at $1.63 a bushel; and January soybeans were 3 cents lower at $6.95 1/4 a bushel.

Cattle futures were higher while pork was mostly lower on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Wall Street at Noon

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average was slightly lower, but broader indexes were marginally higher in quiet mid-day trading with investors finding few developments to steer the market.

At noon on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 15.01 at 8,585.65 after initially edging higher from Tuesday's record-setting close, the first ever above 6,600 for the blue-chip barometer.

Broader measures were positive. Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by more than a 5-to-4 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 253.86 million shares, up from Tuesday's midday pace.

The Standard & Poor's 500 list was up 0.56 at 754.18, the NYSE composite index was up 0.66 at 387.56, and the American Stock Exchange composite index was up 0.68 at 578.31.

The Nasdaq composite index, which also rebounded Tuesday to close at a new high, was up 1.18 at 1,328.91.

Stocks drew little direction from bonds, which were little changed.

D.C. Comics may impose on their hometown idol.

After 60 years of wearing the same red, yellow and blue costume, Superman is getting a makeover with a white-hot and blue outfit that will debut in March. D.C. Comics, which owns the Superman character created in 1938, says the Man of Steel also will have different powers and a different story line.

Winter wheat acreage drops

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Illinois farmers hampered by a late soybean harvest and low prices planted about two-thirds of the winter wheat they planted a year ago, the U.S. Agriculture Department said Friday.

The USDA estimated Illinois' winter wheat crop at 1.15 million acres, down 30 percent from the 1.65 million acres planted last year. Nationally, the estimate was 48.2 million acres, 7 percent lower than in 1996 and the smallest acreage since 1978.

A drop in wheat prices and a late soybean crop prevented many farmers from planting their winter wheat in Southern Illinois, the state's biggest wheat-growing region, Clay County farmer Bill Klein said.

Many farmers grow winter wheat on the same acres they use for soybeans during the summer. Heavy spring rains delayed the soybean crops last year, pushing the soybean harvest back and giving farmers little time to plant winter wheat.

"I planted as much as I could, but I got only half of my wheat in," said Klein, who normally plants 300 acres of winter wheat. "Some guys didn't even have time to get their (wheat seed) drills out this fall."

Wheat prices closed generally higher on the Chicago Board of Trade after the USDA's announcement. Wheat for May delivery closed up 2.5 cents per bushel at $3.70.

Wall Street at noon

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks pushed further into record territory this morning as interest rates dropped sharply in the bond market amid news that inflation has remained tame despite recent signs of an accelerating economy.

At noon on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was up 40.41 at 6,749.59, moving toward its fourth straight record-close and sixth in seven sessions.

Broader measures were posting strong gains as well, drawing a boost from an early rally in the bond market.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by more than a 2-to-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 230.95 million shares, up from 202.54 million midway Monday.

The Standard & Poor's 500 list was up 7.25 at 766.76, the NYSE composite index was up 3.28 at 403.99, and the Nasdaq composite index was up 11.12 at 1,342.03. All three were in record territory.

The American Stock Exchange composite index was up 1.09 at 587.22.

Semiconductor shares were prominent in the day's dealings. Advanced Micro Devices was up 3 1/2 at 32 1/4 as the NYSE's most active issue after late Monday's report of a smaller-than-expected fourth-quarter loss. Intel, meanwhile, continued to rise in advance of this evening's earnings report, gaining 1 1/4 to 148 as the Nasdaq's most active issue.

Bond prices jumped this morning after the Commerce Department reported that the core inflation rate, which excludes the volatile food and energy sectors, rose just 0.1 percent in December.

Peoria proposes year-round school

By CHRISTOPHER WILLS
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PEORIA — That blissful end-of-school feeling would become a memory for Peoria children under a plan for year-round classes that was presented Friday.

Peoria District 150 plans to do away with the three-month summer vacation and switch to quarters separated by two-week vacations. That would create 200 days of school rather than the current 180.

The $10 million or so needed for extra teacher's pay and new air conditioning would be supplied by doubling the city sales tax to 2 cents — a rare example of a city directly funding local schools.

Supporters say year-round school can improve learning, offer more time for innovative classes and keep children out of trouble.

"We are kind of a typical American city. If this can work here, it can work elsewhere," said city council member Ed Glover, one of the plan's key developers.

The State Board of Education said Chicago has 15 schools on year-round schedules, but few other Illinois districts use them.

The National Association for Year-Round Education said about 2,400 public schools, with 1.8 million students, offer year-round classes. Most use them to reduce crowding by staggering the weeks students attend school.

Only 4 percent actually increase the number of school days, as Peoria is proposing, and no large district has switched entirely to year-round classes.

Katie Dorner, a senior at Peoria Woodruff High School, said the plan would not affect her but she felt sorry for kids would go to school all year.

"I like it just the way it is," she said. "The teachers get tired of us anyway. They don't want that year-round stuff either."

Amy Luckenbill said she was intrigued by the idea and tried to sell it to her daughter Molly, 9, by explaining that the frequent short vacations would break up the school year.

Backers were quick to say the Peoria plan is far from settled.

They hope to phase in the new school calendar over the next five years, but first they need the tax increase, an agreement with teacher unions and community support.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices were sharply lower early today on the Chicago Board of Trade, walloped by advances in competing crops.

Soybean futures fell after southern Brazil's Rio Grande do Sul region reported scalding rains over the weekend. That relieved drought concerns and increased the possibility of plentiful yields in Brazil's largest growing region.

Wheat futures were pressured by Australia's new production estimate. The Australian Wheat Board said production will come in at 23 million tons, well above the current U.S. Agriculture Department estimate.

Corn futures fell in sympathy with the futures and on reports Chicago will sell the future, some of which may ultimately it plans to make any major purchases anytime soon.

Wheat for March delivery fell 3 cents to $3.77 1/4 a bushel; March corn fell 3 cents to $2.70 1/4 a bushel; March oats fell 8 1/4 cents to $1.43 a bushel; March soybeans fell 9 1/4 cents to $7.39 a bushel.

At noon on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 20.40 at 8,112.70 after shedding an early 16-point gain. Last week, the high-flying blue-chip benchmark gained 129.31 points, or nearly 2 percent, breaking the 8,000-mark for the first time since 1987.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by a 13-to-10 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 180.74 million shares traded, down sharply from Friday's midday high of 200 million.

Broad-market indexes turned mostly lower. The Standard & Poor's 500 list was down 0.77 at 775.40; the NYSE composite index was down 0.82 at 408.49; and the American Stock Exchange composite index was down 0.82 at 589.20. AIDS deaths drop with help from new treatments

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
 ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — AIDS deaths dropped 30 percent last year in New York, the U.S. city hardest hit by the epidemic, demonstrating the stunning power of new treatments to control AIDS.

"It's good news, which we haven't had a whole lot of in the AIDS epidemic," said Dr. Harold Jaffe of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Across the United States, AIDS specialists have noticed a dramatic improvement in the survival of their patients since the introduction of protease inhibitors, a new class of drugs that has revolutionized AIDS treatment.

But the latest New York City statistics, released Friday, represent the first firm evidence that treatment breakthroughs are truly having a broad impact on deaths from the disease.

Jaffe said he expects 1996 national figures to show the same drop seen in New York City.

The city's AIDS figures began to improve even before the advent of protease inhibitors, so other factors must also be playing a role. Just what they are is a matter of speculation, but doctors suggest better access to treatment through federal and state programs may have contributed.

New York City has 3 percent of the country's population but 16 percent of its AIDS cases. Over the years, more than 90,000 New Yorkers have been diagnosed with AIDS. The number of cases reported annually is about four times higher than in Los Angeles, the city with the second highest figures. AIDS is New York's third leading cause of death. Indeed, among people age 25 to 44, it is the top killer.

Snag hits Simpson trial

Puzzling recess may be linked to 2 jurors who are moved

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Another mysterious snag hit the O.J. Simpson civil trial today as the judge called an indefinite recess and two jurors were escorted to a nearby empty courtroom.

Before plaintiff lawyers could give their final two hours of rebuttal summation, the judge called lawyers into his chambers for a 20-minute private meeting. Attorneys emerged grim-faced and huddled with their colleagues at each side of the counsel table.

The bailiff then ordered everyone out of the courtroom.

No reason was given for the recess or the in-chambers meeting.

It was not known if the recess was linked to the two jurors, a black woman in her 60s and a white man in his 30s who sits next to her in the back row of the jury box. From the hallway, reporters could see bailiffs escorting the pair to an empty courtroom near the room where the trial is taking place.

Four alternates are still available if any members of the five-man, seven-woman panel are dismissed.

The series of events took place before trial ever began this morning. The jury was never brought into the courtroom.

For nearly a week now, the jurors have listened to seven lawyers argue, rant, plead and drone on and on.

Deliberations were to begin following a few more hours of plaintiff rebuttal by lawyers Tom Lambert and Daniel Petrocelli.

Jurors must decide whether Simpson should be held responsible for the June 12, 1994, knife slayings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman, and if so, whether to award damages that could cost Simpson millions. Simpson was acquitted of murder in 1995.

Among the factors jurors have to weigh — variously described by the lawyers as critical evidence, crucial facts, uncontradicted truth, important testimony and flat-out lies — is one pressed Monday by the defense: the frame-up.

In a powerful finale, lawyer Robert Baker asserted that Simpson was the victim of a police conspiracy led by former detectives Mark Fuhrman and Philip Vannatter.

Baker delivered his accusation in words even more blunt than those Johnnie Cochran Jr. used at the criminal trial.

"That's planted evidence," Baker said of the bloody glove that Fuhrman contended he found behind Simpson's house.

"There's no question about it."

To support the theory, Baker pointed to the absence of blood drops around the glove and noted that the blood on the glove appeared wet when it should have been dry because it had been sitting there all night.

Vannatter, too, was part of the conspiracy, according to Baker, by suspiciously handling three of the most important vials of blood: that taken from Simpson and the two victims.

Board of Trade
 CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices were mixed early today on the Chicago Board of Trade, while soybean futures prices retreated.

Corn futures rose after the U.S. Agriculture Department reported export sales in the past week of $1.29 million tons, the second straight week where sales exceeded 1 million tons.

Corn faced continued pressure, however, from reports of lost export business. China, once again sold some of its corn to South Korea, Malaysia and the Philippines, taking away U.S. business.

Wheat futures were slightly firmer from Wednesday's weak close on the USDA's report that 444,400 tons of wheat were sold last week.

Soybean futures retreated on reports South America is benefiting from the crop there.

Wall Street at noon

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were trimming carrier gains in late morning as bond prices gave back some of the earlier advances built on a big jump in jobless claims.

At noon on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was up 21.93 at 6,762.67, after rising more than 34 points earlier.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by 3 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 237.12 million shares, above Wednesday's pace of 216.19 million.

Broad-market indexes were trimming their gains as well. The Standard & Poor's 500 list was up 3.81 at 776.31. The NYSE composite index was up 1.77 at 407.86. The Nasdaq composite index was up 7.89 at 1,363.06. The American Stock Exchange composite index was up 0.97 at 586.64. America Online was up 1/4 at 39 after the online service provider reached a $40 million preliminary settlement with its customers who had trouble dialing up the service.
